

The Midweek

Wednesday, March 4, 2020

I have been watching a series on Netflix called “The Crown.” It is a fictional depiction of the reign of Queen Elizabeth II. I say fictional depiction because while it portrays actual events and people, there is no way to know whether the story line in the show is really what happened.

However, there have been some learning moments throughout the three seasons I have watched. For example, one episode focuses on the tragedy of a mining accident in the Welsh town of Aberfan where 116 children and 28 adults were killed when there was a landslide. I had no idea such a disaster had taken place. (It occurred on October 21, 1966.) I also learned a lot about the various prime ministers who held office during the queen’s first 25 years.

For me, one of the more interesting characters is Prince Charles, the heir apparent to the throne. I never really thought much about him other than he was a man married to Princess Diana. This man is now 71 years old.

And then it hit me. At age 71, when most people are retiring and looking forward to their golden years, this man has not yet gotten the job he was born to have. There is not any indication when he will begin in the position he is slated to attain because he has to wait until his mother steps down or passes away. He has been holding in place, for a job he won’t have until later in life when others his age are looking to possibly slow down or stop working altogether. Yet he will be forced to pick up his pace. I applaud his sense of duty and commitment to the people of the United Kingdom and other commonwealths but I am also exhausted just thinking about his grueling schedule to come.

Galatians 6:9 tells us “So let us now grow weary in doing what is right, for we will reap at harvest time, if we do not give up.” As Christians, we are in a somewhat similar situation to Prince Charles but our dedication and commitment is to Jesus. We have no idea what we will be asked to do, at what age, in what place, and for whom, but we know we are all called to serve Him for our entire lives.

We are forever the princes and princesses of our heavenly Father, and thus we have a lifelong duty to the roles we have been given; to love each other, care for those in need, be the hands and feet of Christ in the world, and make disciples for Jesus for the transformation of the world, among others. If we are not fulfilling our duties, perhaps we also need to pick up the pace. No matter our personal circumstances including age, physical capabilities or economic situation, there is always something we can do for others. Prayer, for example, can be done by anyone in any situation.

Our earthly residence won't be Buckingham Palace but we will have a beautiful home in the kingdom eternal with the Lord of heaven and earth. That, to me, sounds like a perfect treasure to look forward to having.

And to God be the glory forever and ever.

COMMUNITY

MILFORD COMMUNITY PANTRY: The Milford Community Pantry is so thankful for the generosity of the congregation at Avenue and we want to be sure you know it. Cheers and applause for the people who helped with the large order that was delivered last week. We also need volunteers for the first Tuesday morning of each month. Our Pantry needs right now are canned pork & beans and cereal. Our diaper closet needs are the larger sizes 4 and 6.

A reminder for those of you who buy through Amazon. Amazon has a site that donates to charities and we are part of the groups you can select. Order through Smile.Amazon.com and select a Milford Community Pantry, Milford, DE. Prayers for our outreach, our volunteers and for the families we serve are always appreciated. Questions call Tita Lewis 664-1321.

HELP US REACH NEW PEOPLE THROUGH WORSHIP

Avenue is continuing to look for ways to reach new people while improving the worship experience on Sunday mornings. We would like to extend the reach of our worship services by live streaming our gatherings on the internet. This would make our worship services available to shut-ins, those who are sick and traveling, as well as those who may be new to the area and checking out churches. Once services are complete, video of the services would be archived on our website or on a platform such as YouTube for those who want to view them later.

While part of our sound system was replaced previously, there are still upgrades that will allow our sound system to be as clear as possible, helping everyone hear the service better and providing the best sound for live streaming. Our wireless microphones are currently out of compliance with the FCC and need to be replaced. We would also like to upgrade our monitors to in-ear monitors, which would reduce the noise coming from the chancel and making the speakers in the Sanctuary sound clearer.

The total cost of the project is $50,000. As this is not a budgeted item, we are looking to see if there are members who would like to contribute to the project. Your contribution will enable high quality sound and as well as the digital distribution of our worship services on Sunday mornings and beyond.

If you would like to contribute to this project, please make a check payable to Avenue United Methodist Church with “A/V Upgrades” in the memo line so we know where to place it. If you have questions about the upgrade possibilities, please contact Pastor Steve at srlamotte@avenueumc.com or Kevin Chamberlain, Minister of Music at KBChamberlain@avenueumc.com.

YOUR QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Can colon cancer be prevented?

Talk to your primary care provider about ways to improve your diet and lifestyle to prevent colon cancer and about scheduling preventive colonoscopy screenings. Pre-cancerous polyps can be removed before they become cancer, preventing the disease.

Other preventive measures:

- Know your family's cancer history
- Eat a diet high in fiber
- Exercise
- Be aware of your body and any symptoms
- Stay up-to-date on your colon cancer screening

But I don't have symptoms. I don't need to be screened.

Most colon cancer patients report having no symptoms prior to their diagnosis. Don't wait for symptoms to occur to get screened for colon cancer if you are over the age of 45 or if you have a family history of the disease. In addition to a colonoscopy, there are several non-invasive, inexpensive at home tests that can be done. Talk to your doctor about the best option for you.

Currently 6 out of 10 patients nationwide are diagnosed with late stage disease. Many because they put off being screened.

Colon cancer affects men and women equally.

COLON CANCER: ABOUT & SYMPTOMS

COLON CANCER
COALITION
coloncancercoalition.org

WHAT IS COLON CANCER?

Colon cancer is one of the most common forms of cancer. Understanding the disease is important for those who have been diagnosed with it, as well as those trying to prevent it.

2nd leading cause of cancer deaths in the United States.

Most colon cancer cases occur in adults over 50, but more-and-more cases are occurring in younger adults, and the cancer is often discovered in more advanced stages.

Colon Cancer vs. Colorectal Cancer

Colon cancer starts in the colon, or large intestine. The colon is responsible for removing fluid and nutrients from the food you eat, then pushing the remaining waste into the rectum where it can be expelled from the body.

Colorectal cancer includes cancers of the colon, but also cancers that form in the rectum, the last part of the digestive tract where stool is expelled through the anus.

For our purposes, colon cancer and colorectal cancer are interchangeable.

1 in 23 develops colon cancer.

YOUR QUESTIONS ANSWERED

How does colon cancer start?

Most start as benign polyps, or growths, on the lining of the colon. Polyps often produce no symptoms and many become cancerous over time.

The best way to detect polyps is through a colonoscopy. When a physician finds a polyp during a colonoscopy, it is removed and sent to a lab for testing.

Some hereditary conditions exist where cancer develops without polyps. Be sure to learn your family's health and cancer history.

African Americans and Hispanics are more likely to be diagnosed with colorectal cancer in its advanced stages.

Who gets colon cancer?

Colon cancer affects men and women equally, all age groups and nationalities, but there are some risk factors for the disease, including:

- Aging: the risk for polyps increase as we age, especially over the age of 50
- A family history of polyps or of colon cancer
- Obesity
- Smoking
- A high fat diet
- Alcohol consumption

Currently 1 in 5 are diagnosed under 54.

When should screening start?

The American Cancer Society recommends those with average risk and no family history should begin screening at the age of 45. A family history of polyps or colorectal cancer means screening should start ten years before a loved one was diagnosed or a polyp was found.

Every patient is different. Please talk with your doctors about your health history to determine when colon cancer screening should begin for you.

9 out of 10 patients will survive 5+ years when colon cancer is caught in early (localized) stages.

But only 1 in 10 will reach the 5 year mark when the disease is diagnosed in late stages.

What are the symptoms?

Many common digestive ailments have similar symptoms, and symptoms don't always mean a serious condition exists. Long term discomfort, recurring or multiple symptoms, however, should be checked out by a doctor.

- Change in bowel habits, including diarrhea for more than 3 days or constipation more than 2 weeks
- Change in the color or shape of the stool
- Rectal bleeding, blood in the stool, or in the toilet after having a bowel movement
- Stomach discomfort or cramping, including a continual feeling of discomfort or urge to have a bowel movement
- Fatigue or weakness
- Unexplained weight loss
- Anemia
- Feeling bloated

“Trust in the Lord with all your heart and lean not on your own understanding; in all your ways submit to Him, and He will make your paths straight.”
